RAILROAD MAN IS ARRESTED TODAY IN MURDER CASE

Is Held on Theory Dead Woman May Have Been Missing Wife

By Associated Press Leased Wire
Gary, Ind., April 29.—Raymond Sweeney, railroad engineer, was arrested today in connection with the mysterious death of a young woman whose body was found alongside the Burnsville road near here last Sunday.

The police admitted they had no direct evidence against Sweeney and were holding him as a measure of precaution because a family friend had stated he believed the burned and mutilated body was that of Sweeney's wife, Lucille.

Sweeney was first taken into custody last night but was released when a friend told of having received a letter from Mrs. Sweeney saying she was at Farina, Ill., near Carroll, under the name of "Louise Garrow."

Checking up on that angle was one of the efforts of the officers, who also were supervising the dragging of a lagoon near the place where the disfigured body was found.

The police dog leads officers.

The officers were led to the lagoon by a German police dog, which led them also to a partly burned house.

Both legs and the right arm of the body are missing and dragging the lagoon was expected to reveal the missing members. The dog led the officers from the spot where the body was found to the pool three times.

The arrest of Sweeney and the actions of the dog produced the only new angles to the investigation today.

Many persons continued to view the body at H. A. Flynn's undertaking establishment at Chesterton, Ind., but none could offer a clue as to the identity.

Nearly six hundred men and women have visited Chesterton to see the body, Mr. Flynn said, possibly 75 per cent of them being from a distance and genuinely interested in finding a lost one.

Telegrams and telephone calls have come to him from Evansville, Ind., and Rockford and Evanston, Illinois, he said.

WOMAN TELLS STORY
By Associated Press Leased Wire
Centralia, Ill., April 29.—Lucile D. Garrow, the woman who wrote a postal card to a Mrs. Watson in Gary, Ind., and for whom a search has been in progress for the past two days, is in Farina, Illinois, 20 miles from Centralia, a telephone conversation with the mayor of Farina developed at 12:30 this afternoon.

The woman says she is the wife of T. B. Phillips, an E. J. & E. switchman at Gary, Ind., and that her name before marriage was Garrow, and that she signed her name as she did to prevent it becoming mixed up with the mails for other Phillipses in and around Farina.

According to the mayor of Farina, the woman says she is well acquainted with Raymond Sweeney and other Sweeney's, and with a large number of people who enjoy the same acquaintances in Gary.

Modernism Not Gaining Place in Lutheran Church
By Associated Press Leased Wire
Chicago, April 29.—Modernism has not gained entrance into the Lutheran Church, the Rev. Peter Peterson, president of the Illinois conference of the Evangelical Lutheran Augustana Synod, declared at the annual convention of the conference here today. Attendance at services has pronounced good and said religious education in Sunday schools and summer schools of the church has been extended.

The English language, the president said, is being adopted by the church in its home mission work and in rural churches. The church thereby, he said, is discarding national lines and becoming the church of the community in many instances.

In reporting on building projects in the conference, Rev. Peterson said the Lutheran Hospital in Moline has planned a $350,000 bond issue for extension and Calvary Church, Rockford, has been completed among a number that are being built.

The commencement exercises of the Eldena, Nelson, Cook, Lilevan, Hill, Stony Point, White Temple and Duls schools, which it had been planned to hold in the south side high school building in Dixon at 8 o'clock this evening, will be held in the Methodist church instead.

"DON'T TELL MY RELATIVES" OLD MAN'S LAST PLEA

Aged Wayfarer Dead at Carroll Home After a Fall

Mt. Carroll, Ill.—"Don't tell my relatives in case I die. They wouldn't care much about it and I'm too old to be any use to anyone anyway, so don't bother." This was the dying message given by Geo. Seabrook, 78, who passed away at the county farm near this city, as a result of exposure and injuries sustained when he fell from a bridge into the deep mud at Hanna bridge 4 miles north of Lanark.

The aged man was found by Patrick Speicher, a farmer living in the vicinity, after he suffered from hunger and exposure for over ten hours when discovered and had been in this trying situation throughout the night, unable to help himself.

Rushed to Lanark, where he could be given medical aid, and later taken to the county institution, it was seen that he could not long survive and efforts were made to gain some information from him as to his life and whereabouts of his relatives.

He gave his home address as Kenton, Ohio, but stated that he had not been there for over four years but had spent that time in wandering about the country seeking work. One brother is said to be living in the state of Washington and another in California, but the dying man would not allow them to be notified and could not give their addresses.

When found he had 23 cents in money on his person and no letters or any means of identification in his clothing that would enable the authorities to tell who he was other than the statement he made.

He was buried among the other homeless wanderers whose last resting place has been the potter's field in Carroll county.

New Potatoes Twice as Plentiful as Year Ago
By Associated Press Leased Wire
Chicago, April 29.—New potatoes are twice as plentiful as a year ago. The U. S. Bureau of Agricultural Economics reported today that shipments of new potatoes to market in the last week, have increased to 1,350 carloads, nearly double the output for the previous week as well as for the corresponding time last year.

Abundant arrivals of new potatoes from the south are fast pushing old potatoes into the back ground and bringing about a decided downward trend in prices.

With supplies of new stock becoming of greater volume each day, Green Mountain old potatoes in bulk have dropped to 35 cents a hundred pounds at Maine shipping points, the lowest mark of the season.

BRIDGE COLLAPSED UNDER TWO AUTOS ON MERIDIAN WAY

Five Narrowly Escaped Death in Accident Near Rochelle

Five persons narrowly escaped death Tuesday morning when the Crandall bridge over the drainage canal, two miles north of Rochelle on the Meridian highway, collapsed, throwing the occupants of two machines into the stream.

Whether the bridge collapsed before the arrival of the first car or after the machine had been driven onto the structure is a matter of conjecture and is being investigated by Ogle county highway commissioners.

A Ford sedan driven by O. T. Barnes, salesman for the Schiller piano company at Oregon, was the first machine to approach the structure from the north. Mr. Barnes was accompanied by his wife.

Collapse Under Machine.
The Oregon driver insists the bridge collapsed under him, throwing the car to one side of the structure.

Because the bridge has caved in the center, Timothy Whitney, Stillman Valley, who was driving a Buick from the south and accompanied by Emil Lindquist and Fred Kruse, both of Kings, were unable to detect its condition or the position of the Oregon machine. As a result the heavy Buick on attempting to cross the structure, skidded into the lighter machine brushing it into the creek.

Ford Overturns in Water.
The Ford car was overturned, Mrs. Barnes sustaining several severe cuts from broken glass. She was rushed to Lincoln hospital, Rochelle, where physicians announced that her injuries were not of a serious nature.

The Buick lodged against a pier in the center of the structure, and while badly damaged, did not turn turtle. Lindquist was the only passenger in the larger car to be hurt and his injuries are not considered serious.

Accident Closes Road.
The Crandall bridge has a span of approximately 40 feet. Traffic on this section of the Meridian highway was suspended today pending repairs on the structure.

AIR TAMPER TO BE USED BY N. W. IN TRACK LAYING

The fastenings for the new rails that will be laid this summer on the Chicago & Northwestern railroad west of Sterling has been unloaded but so far the rails have not arrived. It was at first thought that they would arrive here during April, but now they are expected some time in May. The work of laying the new steel will begin as soon as the rails arrive and it will keep a gang of a hundred men busy for a month or more, laying a mile of track a day.

The new compressed air tamper that will be used in the track laying work was tried out here last week and is now being used near Nelson. It is a tamping machine operated on the same principle as a pneumatic riveting machine, striking blows rapidly while the handle of the machine is held stationary. This machine will save any amount of muscular effort formerly expended in lifting and dropping a heavy tamper or using a rod or pick to poke the ballast down in tight places. A car equipped with a compressed air outfit operated by a gasoline engine accompanies the tamper and a small crew can do the work formerly done by a much larger number.

Sterling Sends Bill to Morrison for Fire Service

Sterling—Acting under the regulations adopted by the city governing the charge for services of the pumper and members of the Sterling fire department on calls out of the city, a bill of $310 will be sent to the city of Morrison for the services of the pumper and nine men at the Libby, McNeill & Libby factory fire last week.

This charge is made under the rule of $60 for the first hour of service and $50 for each hour thereafter. This is for time actually spent at the scene of the fire and does not include the time spent in going and coming from Morrison, or the time spent in cleaning the hose and equipment upon their return home. The Sterling pumper and men began throwing water at the Morrison fire at 5:05 a. m. and were on the job until 11:05 a. m.

Says Over a Billion Will Be Spent for Recreation

By Associated Press Leased Wire
Chicago, April 29.—Americans will spend more than a billion dollars for recreation during the vacation period this year, according to Miles E. Westbrook, manager of the National Outdoor Life Exposition to be held here on May 9 to 17. Motorists and motor campers will spend half of this sum, he estimated. Upwards of five million campers will be lured to the highways by accelerated road building programs in all states.

Colorado, Montana, Michigan, South Dakota, Wisconsin, Indiana and Illinois will be represented in the exposition.

ANNUAL HEART TAG DAY WILL BE HELD HERE

Volunteers of America to Sponsor Affair on Coming Saturday

Permission has been given a representative of the Volunteers of America to hold their annual "Children's Heart tag day" in Dixon on Saturday May 2nd.

The affair will be sponsored by the following leaders in civic and clerical circles: Rev. Prentiss Hovey Case, Mrs. A. H. Ahrens, Mrs. E. E. Shaw, Mayor F. D. Palmer, Mrs. C. A. Robbins, Father Michael Foley, with Miss Mary A. Erwin in charge at the Chamber of Commerce office.

The Volunteers of America, organized nearly thirty years ago by General and Mrs. Maud Ballington Booth, is a national institution having one or more headquarters in every state. One department of its activities is spiritual work among prisoners in state penal institutions and looking after families of prisoners often left destitute while the father serves his sentence.

The work of the Volunteers of America is supported entirely by voluntary contribution and it is for such cases as these as well as other, unfortunates that citizens are asked to buy a tag on Saturday and to give for it a quarter, dime or half dollar. No sum will be too large and none too small to help this worthy cause.

Injunction Against I. C. Cutoff Kissolved Today

Chicago, April 29.—(By the Associated Press.)—The Illinois Central Railroad was successful in the appellate court which today reversed the finding of the lower court and ordered dissolved an injunction which had been granted in the superior court here restraining the company and its subsidiaries from financing the Edgewood cut-off line in southern Illinois.

The appellate court in an opinion by Justice Charles M. Thompson, directed that the case be remanded to the Superior Court with directions to dissolve the injunction and dismiss the bill of complaint, which had been filed against the railroad by business men of Cairo and other protesting cities.

The appellate court held that the Superior court has no jurisdiction in the case, and that the bill of complaint should have been dismissed "as soon as it became apparent that the suit was one to set aside an order of the Interstate Commerce Commission."

The Illinois Central interests, through a subsidiary, had arranged to finance the new line from Edgewood, Illinois, into Kentucky and had obtained the approval of the Interstate Commerce Commission at Washington.

Construction already had started when complaints from Cairo and other communities filed suit for an injunction, alleging that the new line would divert large sums of money from the state charter tax payable by the Illinois Central to the State of Illinois by reason of diversion of traffic over the shorter Edgewood line into Kentucky.

The railroad company contended that the Edgewood cut-off would enable it to shorten its schedules between Chicago and the Gulf coast, thereby facilitating its through traffic and insisted that the southern Illinois communities would not be injured.

In the Superior court of Cook County, where the complaint was filed, a temporary injunction restraining the financing and of the new line, was issued, and the court refused to enjoin construction work, which was allowed to proceed pending decision in the higher courts.

Maksinowicz Re-Enacts Part in Spader Murder

Michael "Mickey" Maksinowicz, confessed participant in the slaying of George Spader at the Dixon state hospital last Thursday evening, in company with Walter Smith, went to the institution yesterday afternoon in company with deputies from the sheriff's office and there showed the manner in which Spader was killed. Officers and physicians of the institution witnessed the actions of Maksinowicz as he re-enacted the tactics which he claims he and Smith used Thursday night of last week, when Spader was murdered and robbed of a sum of money amounting to about $15.

Maksinowicz went through every motion as he had already outlined to the officers and hospital authorities in his two confessions. He dragged the body of Smith along the hot water pipes in the tunnel to a point where he explained Smith had assisted to move the lifeless form around a corner. Throughout the enactment of the brutal murder, Smith remained cool and unmoved, maintaining his innocence of any complicity with the crime after he had stepped out of the tunnel manhole.

NO CHANGE IN BERLIN FOREIGN POLICY LIKELY

Chancellor So Affirms After Meeting With New President

By Associated Press Leased Wire
Berlin, April 29.—Germany's foreign policy will not be changed, Dr. Hans Luther, the German chancellor declared emphatically today in an address before the annual congress of the League for German Industry and Commerce.

This declaration is understood to reflect also the viewpoint of President Hindenburg with whom the chancellor conferred yesterday.

While Dr. Luther did not refer to the recent election, it is generally understood he spoke with the full authority of Hindenburg and the groups promoting the Field Marshal's candidacy.

The people of Europe desire the removal of uncertainty and lack of decision. "A policy having that end in view must naturally be governed by the law of continuity and cannot arbitrarily change its direction."

That Germany does not desire war was a further categorical declaration by the chancellor, who laid great stress on Germany's adherence to the security pact idea.

The jury box was filled at the noon hour and the taking of testimony was to start this afternoon.

DRAGGING RIVER TODAY FOR BODY OF MISSING GIRL

Several Crews at Work Near the I. C. Bridge During Day

Men in boats and launches equipped with the drag hooks from the city police station were working through the rain today dragging Rock river in a search for the body of Miss Mary Sofolo, 21 year old daughter of Mrs. Lena Sofolo, who is believed to have succumbed Monday. Reports, traced by Chief Van Bibber, led to the theory that the young woman may have ended her life by drowning in the river near the Illinois Central railroad bridge.

At noon today another report was received which was being investigated, but it was doubtful if this would cast any new light on her whereabouts. Police learned that a woman answering the description was observed on the Illinois Central railroad bridge Monday afternoon, wandering about and looking into the river. She is said to have gone to the second fire barrel from the south end of the bridge and pondered a few minutes, then to have returned and walked down to the edge of the water just east of the bridge. It was in this vicinity that the dragging crews began their operations this morning at 10 o'clock under the supervision of Chief J. D. Van Bibber and Officer Harold Lenox, and continued throughout the day.

The report received at the noon hour stated that a woman answering the description, was seen about 10:30 yesterday morning wandering about on the Harris farm just east of Oakwood cemetery. This place had been visited by the police yesterday and a thorough search of the buildings made.

Downers Grove Split Over Race Question

By Associated Press Leased Wire
Chicago, April 29.—A race question is disturbing the peace of Downers Grove, where there has been no excitement since Mrs. Louise O'Neil was first elected to the legislature.

The town has only three negro families among her six thousand citizens. These have lived there many years. Recently Roy C. Tombs sought the services of a janitor for the Downers Grove Trust Company of which he is president, and employed a young negro from Kewanee. The negro brought his family to Downers Grove and Mr. Tombs placed them in a house which he owned.

For several days the banker has been receiving telephone calls informing him that unless the negro and his family were removed, the house and its occupants would be blown up. Mr. Tombs last night placed the problem before the citizens association, stating that if it was the opinion of the villagers that no more negroes should be permitted to come to Downers Grove, he would induce the janitor to leave.

After much discussion, a motion was adopted that the association should not enter into the controversy; that to counsel Mr. Tombs to remove the negroes would receive unfavorable criticism and likewise to advise that the negroes remain would not act as an invitation for many Chicago negroes to move into the village.

Meanwhile guards watch the house nightly and the banker continues to receive threats.

CITY TO COVER DRAINAGE DITCH IN HIGHLAND AVE.

Proposals Asked for Improvement by City Council

The council last evening completed another very important chapter in the "city beautiful" program. The body vote unanimously to invite bids on the construction of a reinforced concrete arch over the unsightly storm drain which skirts Highland avenue. It was the original plan to box this ditch spring, leaving it open through Highland square and beginning again at Third street next year, to complete the covering connecting up with Highland avenue.

By the action of the council last evening, this entire improvement, which was originally spread out over a two year period, will be completed this summer at an approximate cost of $10,000. Bids on the proposed improvement will be received by the council at its next meeting, Tuesday evening, May 5.

Taxi Lines Notified They Must Pay City

Owners of the Yellow Cab and Durant taxi lines were to be notified today by city officials that their operation must cease in Dixon unless the annual city licenses were paid. This action was taken following a controversy in which it was said that the operators of both lines had failed to meet the requirements of the city ordinance which covers the licensing of taxi cabs and drivers. It was anticipated that the city's request for immediate compliance with the ordinance would not be opposed longer. Both lines have been operating without city licenses since April 1, it was said.

LAND BOUGHT THIS MORNING BY OFFICIALS

Establishment of Parking Place this Summer is Planned

Final plans for the greatest program of scenic improvement of Dixon in the history of the city, made possible at last evening's session of the city council, were formulated this morning. The program involves the purchase of three pieces of property on the south bank of Rock river and extending from Ottawa avenue on the east to Florida avenue on the west. This is the first link of a chain of improvements which are anticipated and by which it is believed that future councils will bring about the beautification of the south river bank from Ottawa avenue west to the Illinois Central bridge.

The program which has been in the process of formulation for many months became a reality this morning when the Thomas Young property lying between Ottawa and Galena avenues with an approximate width of 125 feet was purchased by the city at a consideration of $27,500. James H. Boyer, owner of 140 feet of river frontage property extending westerly disposed of his holdings to the city for $10,000, and the property adjoining the Boyer tract on the west for a distance of about 440 feet and owned by Henry S. Dixon was purchased for $12,000.

In Use this Summer.

All three pieces of property were turned over to the city this morning the deeds delivered, articles signed and payment made in full. The Young property is at present under a lease which expires June 15, and at that time this piece of the city's new property will be cleared of the old buildings, some filling done, and will be ready for use as a public automobile parking ground this summer.

James Boyer, who has occupied his property just west of the Galena avenue bridge with a machine repair shop, has been granted 30 days in which to vacate. The Dixon property is now ready to be improved.

Added to the purchase of the three tracts the council in the annual appropriation ordinance for this year, has provided a sum of $10,000 which will be used this summer in improving the newly acquired tracts. Under the plans now being considered, a comfort and rest station will be erected upon the site on which the Young coal office now stands. A public scale will also be maintained in connection with this building. A custodian will in all probability make his home in the comfort station, attending the scales and will have police power to have charge of the public parking grounds. These improvements will be completed and turned over to the public this summer, according to the plan.

To Cost About $60,000.

The improvement involves the expenditure of approximately $60,000, this amount being available for the purchase and maintenance through the various departments of the city council. For months, members of the council have discussed and worked for the completion of such a plan. Many encumbrances have confronted them in securing the three pieces of property. The amount expended is very small when the reality value of the tracts is considered. Civic pride has played a most important part in the entire transaction on the parts of all parties concerned.

The members of the council have foreseen that the parking problem in Dixon is fast becoming a most serious one, and the need of a public parking space has long been felt. The dilapidated structures and the unsightly bank of Rock river in the heart of the city has been a matter of no minor consideration. Owners of the property have co-operated with the council in every way, with a view of beautifying the city and have disposed of their valuable holdings at a remarkably reasonable figure.

O that I were possible
After long grief and pain
To find the arms of my true love
Round me once again!

When I was wont to meet her
In the silent woody places
By the home that gave birth,
We stood transfixed in long embraces Mist with kisses sweeter, sweeter
Than anything on earth.

A shadow flits before me,
Not thou, but like to thee;
Oh, Christ, that it were possible
For one short hour to see The souls we loved, that they might tell us
What and where they be.

Menus for a Family

Tested by SISTER MARY.

Breakfast:
Baked apples, cereal, thin cream, crisp whole wheat toast, creamed fish, milk, coffee.

Luncheon:
Cream of asparagus soup, toast sticks, cottage cheese, brown bread, and butter, fresh strawberry pudding, milk, tea.

Dinner:
Roast beef, horseradish cream, baked potatoes, buttered parsnips, vegetable and fruit salad, bran bread, stewed rhubarb, sponge cake, milk, coffee.

The children of school age should be served the creamed fish for breakfast.

Children under school age should not be allowed to eat the horseradish cream sauce suggested in the dinner menu.

Early in the season desserts with a strawberry flavor are most acceptable. This recipe for strawberry pudding is well worth remembering. The foundation of the pudding is light but nourishing and is quite suitable for small children.

Fresh Strawberry Pudding.
One pint strawberries, 1 cup water, 3 tablespoons cornstarch, 1/4 teaspoon salt, 4 cup sugar, 2 eggs whites.

Wash berries and crush slightly. Let drain. There should be one cup juice. Put juice and water into the smooth saucepan and bring to the boiling point. Dilute cornstarch in enough cold water to pour easily. Stir into boiling liquid. Cook over hot water, stirring constantly for 10 minutes. Add salt, sugar and berries. Keep hot over hot water and fold in the whites of the eggs beaten until stiff and dry. Turn into a mold dipped in cold water. Chill and serve with boiled custard sauce made with the yolks of the eggs.

Horseradish Cream.
Three tablespoons flour, 2 tablespoons butter, 2 cups cream, 1/4 cup grated horseradish, 1 teaspoon vinegar, 1/2 teaspoon salt, 1/2 teaspoon pepper, 1/2 teaspoon sugar.

Melt butter, stir in flour and slowly add cream, stirring constantly. Cook, stirring constantly, for two minutes after all the milk is in. Add salt, sugar, vinegar, pepper and horseradish and heat thoroughly but do not let boil. Serve hot.

Milk can be used in place of cream. This makes a more economical sauce that is very good.

STEWART'S WASHINGTON LETTER

BY CHARLES F. STEWART
NEA Service Writer

Washington—"I think prohibition is pretty well lived up to. I don't see any drunken men," United States Attorney General John G. Sargent told me recently. That same day the clerk of the District of Columbia police court reported 1029 arrests for intoxication in the district during March, one of the largest figures for a single month in the court's whole history, he added.

Not all public officials are so unsophisticated. Some time ago I asked one of them, whose name I can't mention, but who's on the federal supreme bench now and who formerly held the same post Attorney General Sargent holds at present, what his solution of the prohibition problem was. In reply he advised me to read a certain article by Clarence Darrow, in the American Mercury.

I did read it. It was called "The Ordeal of Prohibition." In it the Chicagoan told the story of many laws which public opinion didn't support but which for one reason or another, couldn't be repealed. Invariably, he asserted, after a period of vain effort at enforcement, the government gave up even trying, and the unpopular regulations, while still in the statute books, presently were forgotten, except possibly by a few antiquaries, as curiosities. That, Darrow predicted, will be prohibition's fate.

My anonymous official didn't say he thought so, too, but he did recommend me to read the Darrow article when I put my question.

Conversations which it seems impossible can lead up to the subject of prohibition nevertheless do lead up to it.

Another official I can't refer to by name, but a very well-known one, and a Methodist bishop's son at that, was discussing American education for my benefit lately. "Its strength," he said, "lies in the fact that no attempt ever has been made in this country to force schools on any community. When they were wanted, the people who wanted them established them. Having wanted them, these same people naturally supported them."

"But early in our history there were communities which opposed public education. They'd have rebelled if the central government had tried to cram it down their throats, just as certain communities virtually are in rebellion now against prohibition. That wouldn't have promoted education. It would have retarded it, just as national prohibition has retarded temperance."

Even General Lincoln C. Andrews,

new secretary of the treasury especially in charge of dry law enforcement, seems none too sure of himself, not yet, at any rate. When I asked him for an interview concerning his plans, here's what he answered:

"As I see my task, perhaps its most difficult element is the one that is engaging me right now—to analyze the situation and try to determine the answer to your question, 'What enforcement ought to be and is going to be like.' When I have determined my answer to that, I feel that the problem will be more than half solved and that my course from then on will be quite clear.

"When that time comes I will be very glad to talk it over."

Bolivia has abolished legal education. The student lawyers of today will be allowed to finish up. Then no more lawyers until some of the present crop die off. There are so many that the minister of education has to do the rest of the work of the country. So the United States charge d'affaires informs the State Department. "A display of eminent common sense," he calls it.

PEOPLE'S COLUMN

GOVERNOR CARTER'S HOUSE.

Augusta Karch De Lhorbe, Oregon, Ill.

It is a house of logs, hand-hewn. An early homestead, old and crude, but there came Lincoln as a guest. By its rude hearth he sat to rest.

"Prophetic Ministry" is Needed, Professor Says

By Associated Press Leased Wire

Chicago, April 29.—The need of a "prophetic ministry" was urged upon the congress of Disciples of Christ today by Professor A. W. Taylor, Indianapolis, Ind., secretary of the Disciples' Board of Temperance and Social Welfare.

When a preacher enters his pulpit, Professor Taylor declared, he should speak the truth without reference to the self-interest of those who sit in the pews. Free lance ministers, without a pastorate, he suggested as a means of meeting the need for a prophetic minister.

When a preacher sits in council with his church leaders on matters of institutional policy and practice, he should become one of them, but when he enters his pulpit he would then speak the truth and without reference to the self-interest of those who sit in his pews.

The formation of the New Testament was a cosmopolitan process, according to Professor E. J. Goodspeed of the University of Chicago.

Ephesus, Rome and Alexandria, he said, contributed successively to the bringing together of its books, written by many hands, in different places and at various times.

"The process," he said, "while completed by ecclesiastical interests, originated in the practical religious needs of the early church."

Klansmen Attacked This Morning; Several Hurt

By Associated Press Leased Wire
Whitinsville, Mass., April 29.—Police were planning today to conduct an investigation into the disorders which marked a meeting of the Ku Klux Klan in North Bridge early today when 150 members of the Klan were attacked by 200 men as they attempted to leave the meeting place.

The Klansmen were met with a fusillade of stones, smashing automobile windshields and several of the Klansmen were reported hurt by stones during the fracas.

Game and Fish News

by C. F. Mansfield, Jr. Secy.
The Federated Sportsmen of Illinois

Springfield, Ill., April 28.—Hon. Robert Scholes, in a speech before the House Committee on Fish and Game, advocated the passage of House Bill 435, introduced by A. O. Arnold of Quincy, which directs the Director of Conservation to acquire by purchase or lease approximately 5,000 acres of marsh land in Adams county, known as Lima Lake. This area is to be used for a public shooting and fishing ground, open to any person holding an Illinois hunting and fishing license, but subject to regulations prescribed by the Director of Conservation.

According to Mr. Scholes, this is one of the vitally important steps towards the preservation of hunting and fishing, not alone for the wealthy man but for the person of ordinary means. It is only by the acquisition by the state of large areas to be used for refuges for propagation of game and fish with other areas for shooting and fishing, that future generations will be privileged to enjoy these greatest of outdoor sports.

While Illinois is not alone in this move to acquire preserves and shooting and fishing grounds, the method of paying for them is considered by many leaders to be the best. Pennsylvania has just passed a $25,000,000 bond issue for this purpose. The payment of these bonds will come from direct taxes.

The Illinois system of purchasing preserves and shooting grounds is very similar to that used in building hard roads. The roads are paid for by automobile license fees without direct taxes. Similarly, the plan for game preserves, fish hatcheries and public shooting and fishing, contemplates the use of money derived solely from the sale of hunting and fishing licenses.

While the amounts received from these sources are ample at the present time, it seems probable that the hunters and fishermen will ask the next general assembly to double both the hunting and fishing licenses, provided that at least half of the receipts will be used to purchase and maintain public shooting and fishing grounds together with the hatcheries, preserves and refuges necessary to maintain a constant supply of game and fish.

THE PROMISED LAND.

At a banquet in Boston, a young man in dinner clothes walks up to the toastmaster and says: "Don't you remember me? The last time I saw you, I was shining your shoes. I was your bootblack."

Then the ex-bootblack introduces himself as P. Nichols Petrocelli, assistant corporation counsel of the city of Boston, officially representing the big city in the absence of Mayor Curley.

A pretty good old United States, isn't it, with bootblacks becoming prominent public officials, a bicycle repair man evolving into Ford the auto maker, and a poorly paid office clerk in Cleveland winding up as the richest man in the world—John D.

The more you study the careers of the most outstanding of the big successes, the more you ponder that they rarely had powerful friends to assist them.

They fought their way—created their opportunities instead of finding them.

Parents are forever impressing on boys the advantages of making influential friendships. While such connections certainly are valuable, they are more apt to serve as a ball-and-chain restricting progress, for the young man is tempted to rely less on his own efforts.

We cannot all become big successes, and there's no use pretending otherwise. Not all have the necessary natural ability, education or environment. But there is very little reason for any man winding up as an absolute failure. In this golden land of opportunity, there is room for all—and always room for a newcomer to the ranks of success, for any man who can do any job better than it has been done before.

We like to read about these fascinating cases, such as the bootblack studying law at night and becoming a powerful official of a big city. These cases stir us on to renewed efforts.

Our political freedom—the right to select the men who govern us—is invaluable. But the Real Freedom in modern America is freedom to win if you can deliver the goods, regardless of birth, race or creed. Anything that destroys this opportunity-for-all destroys Real Freedom.

THEORIES AND FACTS.

"To prohibit the teaching of the theory of evolution, as a theory," says Wm. Allen White, Kansas editor and author, "is sheer bigotry, plus ignorance which always is the mother of bigotry."

He is answering a critic who complains that evolution is being taught "not as a theory, but as a fact." This, says Mr. White, is not true. He does not know of any place where the doctrine of evolution—of the unfolding of all physical life from the simple to the complex and varied—is set forth as anything more than a theory or guess which seems to explain known facts better than any other theory does.

"What the bigots object to," add White, "is not the teaching of the theory of evolution but the teaching of the facts which support the theory."

If this is so, it means a dishonest viewpoint and a dishonest plan of education. True education is open-minded, never taking any theory as the last word in truth, always ready either to revise an old explanation or consider a new explanation.

The true educator or the true student is "from Missouri," but with less mulishness than is usually associated with a Missourian attitude. He is not defying any one to "show him" some new things, but is ready to be convinced of any new thing if satisfactory evidence is produced.

Most persons are inclined to discard new ideas offhand, without examining the evidence. This is the easiest way, but doesn't get any one anywhere.

TWINS AND THE LAW.

"What is the law to do," inquires a baffled editor, "when it is required to do something which it can not do without also doing something it is forbidden to do?"

The question concerns the interesting case of Lucio and Simplicio Samar, Siamese twins of Manila, P. I. The two ride around a good deal in their automobile. Lucio is a careful driver, but Simplicio is fast and reckless. Many complaints have been made against Simplicio, and his arrest has been ordered. But the authorities can not arrest him without taking Lucio along, and they don't want to lock up an innocent man. So they mark time and wonder what to do.

Solomon ought to sit on this case. In his absence, perhaps a humble suggestion or two may be offered. Very likely the said Lucio isn't so innocent as he looks and acts. He may really enjoy having his reckless brother cavort around town with him like that, and merely do his own fast driving vicariously. If so, incarceration wouldn't be really unjust for him.

In any event, why not lock them both up, and if Lucio feels bad about it, let him apply for a habeas corpus and see what happens.

SCARED.

Objecting to being held up, a grocer named Frank Saikley gave chase to the robber in Danville, Ill. He collapsed after several shots were fired at him. At the hospital, surgeons found that the dripping red on his coat was not blood, but soda fountain sirup from a bottle shattered by one of the shots.

This demonstrates the power of mind over matter. But it doesn't keep men from dying after they have been shot without; in the agitation of excitement, knowing it.

WORLD HAS GROWN NO WORSE IN GENERATION

"College orgies" are once more a chronic feature of the news. Some investigators discover, or some scandal reveals college youth drinking had booze and doing the other things that usually go with it.

Not all the stories are true, and most of them are exaggerated, but there is of course a basis for some of them, and for these there is no legitimate defense.

But also there is no excuse for jumping at the usual conclusion that these things are new, or are peculiar to colleges. Who of the older generation of college men has forgotten that these things happened in his time, too, in college and out?

The memory, to be sure, is likely to refer mostly to observation of the conduct of others. Those who led the wild careers themselves are mostly dead—as their imitators of today will be long before the end of what should have been their working lives.

But the thing did happen, whole sale, then as now, and the world has grown no worse in this generation. It merely has a more enterprising news service.

Shanghai has turned down a move to limit child labor. The hopelessness of doing it in the rest of China may have been one motive, in addition to some other less defensible. Doubtless it is none of our business.

But do Americans realize that they are among the chief beneficiaries of this Chinese child labor? The beautiful Chinese rugs, for which America is the principal market, are practically all made by the labor of underpaid, overworked and cheated children. The same is true of "Oriental" rugs, of Turkish and Persian pattern, at least so far as they are made in India.

Whether adults also participate in Persia and Turkey, the writer is not able to say from personal observation, but certainly, even there, much of the labor must be that of children.

This is not to say that we should cease buying these products. Probably that would only make the situation worse. But it is a reminder to America that the price of one of our most prized luxuries is the exploitation of children.

VISAS ARE COSTLY TO AMERICAN TOURISTS

The State Department has taken up with the principal nations to whose countries our tourists go the question of abolishing passport visas, on a reciprocal basis.

Perhaps the "visas" cannot be abolished entirely. We may need them in some countries ourselves, to administer our immigration laws, and some other countries may need them for their own reasons. But we can at least agree to end the burden some $10 fee, now exacted of American tourists for each country they visit. That is pure retaliation, against us. Between themselves, these countries charge only such small visa fees as will pay the cost of the service.

But, because America, as a part of our policy of discouraging immigration, charged a $10 fee, the other countries naturally found excuse to charge our citizens the same.

If a quarter of a million of our people go to Europe this summer, and each of these visit from four to a dozen countries, this fee merely for permission to cross the numerous frontiers of Europe is a substantial addition to the cost of travel. Fewer Europeans come to America, and each of these needs only one visa.

It would be cheaper for us to pay the whole cost of registering them ourselves than to charge them more than the cost and then have their countries collect five times the amount from our people. The best hope is that we may again see the condition of "before the war" when the mere tourist moved about with no passport formalities whatever and the more permanent visitor had

ADVENTURES OF THE TWINS

NO. 21—SNUFF IN A BARBER SHOP

And then such a hubbub began you couldn't have heard your ears.

After acting in a perfectly graceful manner in the photograph man's shop, Snitcher Snatch, the goblin, jumped out of the window, taking the magic snuff with him.

Nancy and Nick and Mister Whizz followed him, you may be sure.

"We could have caught him without much trouble," said Nick.

"I know," said Mister Whizz. "but I thought that cross old photograph needed a lesson. The lady couldn't help sneezing, and he had no right to scold her. I think that Snitcher Snatch also thought he needed a lesson. That's why he put some snuff on his nose and made him sneeze, too."

"Oh, dear!" said Nancy. "The Fairy Queen will think we're dreadfully slow about getting her uncle's snuff box back."

"Never mind," remarked Mister Whizz. "We'll get it yet. There goes the goblin now. He just turned a corner. Come! Jump into my magic aeroplane and we'll chase him."

They all piled into the little machine, and Mister Whizz turned a few knobs, and the aeroplane went "buzzzz!" Then it rolled along on its little wheels for a few feet and lifted itself off the ground.

Once again they were after the bad little fellow who made more mischief than all the other goblins and gnomes and elves put together.

"What do I see?" cried Mister Whizz suddenly, shading his eyes and looking far ahead. "Is it a stick of candy?"

Nancy and Nick looked over the edge of the aeroplane.

"No, it's a barber shop," shouted Nick. "That place must be a barber shop."

"Well then," said Mister Whizz, shutting off his engine and starting to glide down to the earth. "It's high time we were catching our young friend. I just now saw him go in—"

WE ARE DEVELOPING TWO LANGUAGES

John L. Sullivan's newest biographer has a tale, doubtless mythical, of a cub reporter who asked John: "I am desirous of ascertaining how you manipulate your hands with such force and accuracy as to succeed in annihilating every opponent you have encountered."

The shock is said to have knocked Sullivan out, for the first time in his career, and the reporter escaped before he recovered enough to reply.

"That is funny. But is it any funnier than the reply Sullivan would have made if some one had interpreted the question after he came to? 'Foist, I swipes him in de jaw,' or words to that effect. Or is it any further from standard English than even the printed language of the sporting page?"

We are developing two languages, one of print and the other of speech. If we do not want our print to become as stilted as that of the dummy reporter of this story, or our speech to become as uncouth as the prize ring jargon, we will do well to keep our written and colloquial language closer together.

ABE MARTIN

Ever things "parties" these days, an I kin remember when they was only four kinds—Democratic, Republican, Greenback, an' taddy pullin'.

"I'll never git married agin when ever-buddy's in Florida," complains Leb Pash's niece, whose weddin' in February didn't pay fer her hose.

The children who are the first to get everything that comes along in the way of diseases are usually the ones whose parents are too fond of protecting the youngsters from frost and sunstroke. Anything can be overdone, of course, but an hour a day outdoors, except on very severe days, is certainly reasonably low for every healthy child.

On pleasant days six or eight hours are little enough. What are known as ultra-violet sun rays are said to exercise a profound influence over health, being especially valuable in the prevention and cure of rickets. These are among the shortest rays that come from the sun and are much more abundant at noon than at any other time of day in this latitude. They are also more abundant in summer than in winter. Dust and clouds interfere very noticeably with their journey to the earth while they are absent almost entirely from sunshine that has passed through glass. These facts suggest the importance of airings near the middle of the day.

A great many people believe that mother nature will look out for their health interests if only things are left to her. The chief difficulty with this theory is that nature has so many other forms of life to look after that her attention to man needs to be pretty vigorously supplemented. A disease germ, for example, is a form of life just as natural as man and nature is just as anxious to preserve the germ specie as that of humans. Man has the advantage of knowing the habits of germs and it is up to him to establish peaceful relations.

Milk is the perfect food, winter and summer, but it takes a lot more effort to keep in hot weather. That is because germs thrive on milk as well as do people and germs grow mighty fast in warm milk. Nature favors the germs during the summer. To reverse nature's decision man needs to keep the milk pretty cold, not greater than 60°F. Better still, the milk ought to be raised to 145°F., held at that temperature for 30 minutes and then reduced quickly to 60°F. and maintained at that. This process, called pasteurization, is a mighty good way to save the babies from summer diarrhea.

Too many people take it for granted that milk is clean and pure because it looks all right. It might be interesting to dissolve a teaspoon full of black soil into a quart of milk and try to observe some difference in the appearance. Another interesting test is to strain a bottle of milk slowly through a bit of cotton. Sometimes the result leaves an indelible impression on the mind about milk.

Playlet, pageant and song are in order this week as the means for celebrating health promotion week. School children all over the state are celebrating in this manner. Playing and singing are wonderful adjuncts to health, says Dr. Isaac D. Rawlings, state health director. Nothing could be more appropriate, therefore, than to use these happy mediums for teaching health lessons.

Friday, May 1, is child health day. All over the United States it will be observed. Cities, towns and villages throughout Illinois will conduct programs ranging from schoolroom exer-

By Associated Press Leased Wire
New York, April 23—After having been informed by Tex Rickard that it would be impossible to sign him for a title fight until after the Gibbons-Tunney and Willis-Weinert bouts here in June, Jack Dempsey yesterday made no progress in his peace overtures to the New York State Athletic Commission which some time ago placed him on the ineligible list for failure to satisfactorily answer the challenge of the negro Harry 'Willis'.

Dempsey declined to answer all questions of the commission, referring them to his manager, Jack Kearns. He was informed by the board that no official obstacles stood in the way of a Willis match, in spite of the advice of Rickard.

Quit Coal and Use Coke
No Dust, Smoke, Dangerous Gases. No Soot in Chimneys to Burn and Set Fire to the Home.

When people generally learn how clean and safe and economical it is to burn product coke instead of hard or soft coal, they will never go back to coal for fuel, and we will have cleaner cities.

Flueman and Insurance Companies insist that a very large percentage of home destroying fires are caused by soft coal soot setting fire from a burning chimney or sparks on the roof.

Coke does not make any smoke, dirt, soot or gas when burned in a furnace. The proper way to burn coke is simple and is fully explained in a pamphlet issued by the Indiana Coke & Gas Company, Terre Haute, Indiana. It is sent free on request to any householder, and tells how to reduce fuel bills at least 25%.

"QUICK FIRE COKE," made by this company, is the highest quality of by-product coke, as it is processed with great care to produce a high-grade fuel from the coke best suited for this purpose.

Interesting News From Los Angeles by an Ex-Dixonite

As a rule, a man's a fool. When its hot he wants it cool. When its cool, he wants it hot. Always something that is not!"

Los Angeles.—Rains that fell these past few days over Southern California have brought the power supply to normal and greatly eased the water shortage, and all fears have been dissipated that Los Angeles and surrounding territory might suffer from dryness and a lack of water for 1925. The total seasonal precipitation to date is greater than at this time last year, and in the Giant Forest, according to measurements taken early this month, is 41.31 inches for 1925 as compared to 15.94 inches in 1924. Snow on the ground at the time of estimation was 60.1 inches as against 66.3 last year. Total snow fall in 1925 is 33.1 inches as compared with 23.24 in 1924.

Father Rickard, the "Padre of the Rains," the weather prophet at Santa Clara college, has been down here for a few days, the guest of the Knights of Columbus. His predictions have been far more accurate than those of the U. S. Weather Bureau, and he looks for more wetness for this month. In 1914 and 1916 we had two of the biggest floods those years in the month of April.

Some people are never satisfied, as will be noted from the poetry quoted above by a California poet. A few weeks ago they were distressed because of the protracted dryness, and now some crab because of the rains. It is difficult to please everybody, or perhaps anybody, very long.

No longer can we stand on the street and witness a parade in Los Angeles, as a city ordinance prohibits it, so, if we common folks, who don't wear a fur, desire to see the great parades of the Shriners here next June, it will set us back Five Bucks, for they are to be held in the Exposition Park stadium, which seats 77,000, of which 17,000 have been reserved for the Shriners and their guests. That leaves 60,000 seats to be sold to Los Angeles citizens at $5 each.

Oh, well, we've all seen a lot of parades in times gone by!

Not to be outdone by Hollywood's Dogs' Beauty Parlor, reports tell us that back there in Illinois a beauty parlor is to be opened in the women's department of an institution, and that the skinned inmates are used to make full use of its equipment. There they can have their hair bobbed and marcelled, their complexions massaged and their fingernails manicured, without money and the woman who was dippy for a facial pack can have it along with her 2 o'clock hysteria. If a girl is beautifying herself she is less likely to want something she should not have, so, beauty shops for our Lady Bugs may fill a long felt want.

The atrocities charged against the Chileans by the Peruvians in the disputed district of Tarata, according to reports, consisted mainly in the cutting off of the hair of some of the Peruvian women. The attention of the United States and the League of Nations may be directed to this example of barbarism—if it be a fact. Although the President has declared that his decision on the boundary line must stand, yet if the cruel and inhuman Chileans have been forcibly pruning the beards of the Peruvian matrons, they should be held up to ridicule by all mankind. Merely a piece for the paper about it should hardly suffice. Such an affront would make a Peruvian bark!

The only woman editor of a metropolitan paper with a circulation of over 1,000,000 copies, is the guest of friends in Los Angeles. Miss Mary C. King has been Sunday editor of the Chicago Tribune for thirteen years. It is said, "There are no cities like Los Angeles in the Middle West," she is quoted as saying. Wonderful! Hope she's go back home and tell the "Trib." We're not as bad as they say.

A bill is before the Legislature to require licenses for animal trainers. Propaganda sent out with this bill states that Ringling Brothers have decided to abolish all trained animal acts in their circus. This is great stuff, and is not only humane, but good showmanship. Making a tiger wear a sunbonnet and pretend to go to sleep is just about the limit of stupidity.

The Key to Success

Success depends primarily on a healthy liver and stomach. You can not think straight if these organs are not working properly. Mayer's Wonderful Remedy is usually successful in such cases. Our advice to everyone troubled in this way, especially when accompanied with bloating in the stomach, is to try this remedy. It is a simple, harmless preparation that removes the catarrhal mucus from the intestinal tract and allays the inflammation which causes practically all stomach, liver and intestinal ailments, including appendicitis. At all druggists.—Adv.

Same with dogs. They will tell you that they are trained by kindness, which is only another way of razzle-dazzling the public, for we all know its done through fear of what will happen to them after the show—if they don't do the trick.

The "Ovis Poli," Central Asia's big horn ancestor of the modern sheep, probably are now trembling in their haunts today, when they hear that Col. Theo. Roosevelt and his brother, Kermit, are on the way for a hunting expedition. (This is called in the name of "Science," the slaughtering of wild animals.) After one has seen "The Thundering Herd" picture, one will see the horrible slaughter of the balfalo by the white hide-hunters. We don't have to go so far to find a similar tragedy, however. Several years ago I met Antonio Apache, an educated Indian and great friend of Walter (Death Valley) Scott, who told me that the Indians never kill what they need for food. The plains of California used to be alive with deer and Antelope Valley, (not far from L. A.) was teeming with vast herds of antelope—but they are no more!

The white man may have his virtues—if you can find them—but he is the most stupidly and senselessly brutal of any beast who ever encumbered the earth! When it comes to Wanton killing.

STEWART'S WASHINGTON LETTER

BY CHARLES P. STEWART
NEA Service Writer

Washington.—Washington isn't exactly a vicious city. That is to say, it isn't tough, in the sense that Chicago is tough. It isn't hard and cruel like New York. It isn't desperate and dangerous, like San Francisco. Outside the prohibition enforcement service, the thing doesn't flourish here. And yet it can't be said that Washington is good.

It undoubtedly is the most irresponsible city in the country. Not that it means anything very wrong. It simply doesn't care. Nearly everybody here is away from home, with little or nothing to do, and interested almost exclusively in having a good time. These are ideal conditions for Satan's purposes and he makes the most of them.

What's become of the Scott divorce case, at Alpena, Mich.? The testimony in the case told the story of life in Washington with beautiful accuracy. Not everybody's life, of course. But it was very characteristic of the "smart set," which, in proportion to Washington's population, is about ten times the size of any other American city's "smart set."

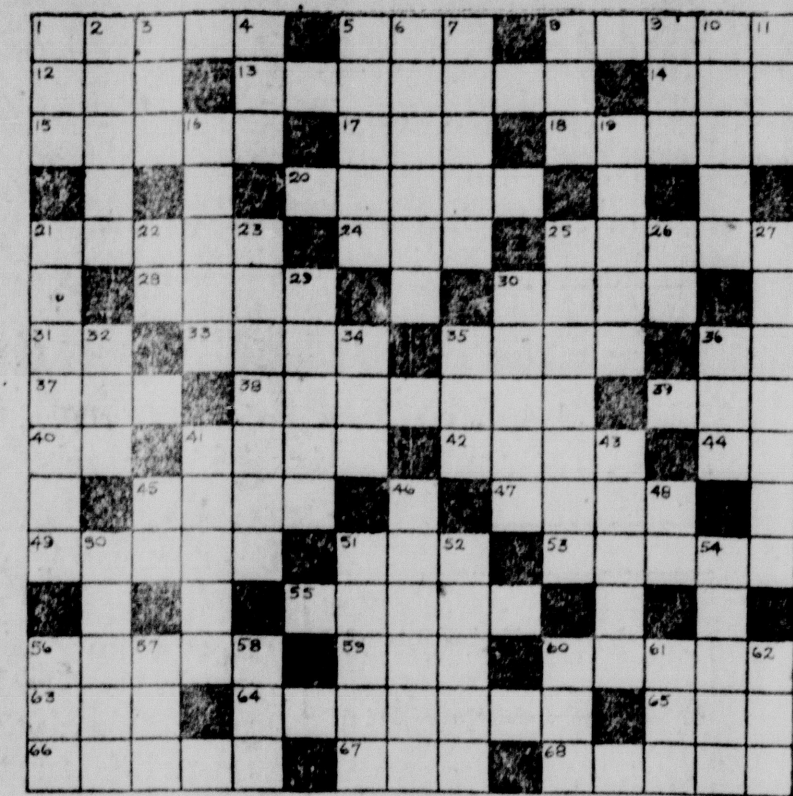

There isn't much depth to its moral turpitude—just the whole outfit bent on fun and excitement, and the devil take the consequences! This isn't assuming that Congressman Scott did all the things his wife said he did, or that his complaints of Mrs. Scott necessarily were well founded. Only both versions did sound so like Washington.

But, anyway, what's become of the Scott case? Washington was enjoying it immensely when they finished the first reel and is mighty anxious to see the second one start. What Washington's afraid of is that there won't be any second one.

However, that statement that Washington was enjoying it needs to be qualified a little. Not quite all

Washington. The Washingtonians whose names were mentioned didn't like it a bit. And when Mrs. Scott announced she wasn't half through, the probabilities are that quite a few more had cold shivers.

At any rate, it's been guessed, again and again, that a lot of pressure would be brought to have the rest of the performance "censored." The surprise now is that it will be postponed and postponed and postponed on into eternity, which will be extremely disappointing to all Washingtonians except those who were, or were afraid they were going to be, sideswiped by it.

Vice President Dawes seems to be making a hit with his demand for a new set of Senate rules, to hurry up business. At all events, he gets plenty of applause when he discusses the question in after-dinner speeches. But that isn't the same thing as inducing the senators to change their own rules.

What the vice president forgets, maybe, is that he's speaking for the present Washington administration, which naturally wants rules that will enable it to get favorable action on its policies, but that the administration lacks a Senate majority.

The Republicans have a majority, yes, if everybody counts as a Republican who calls himself one, but the administration, no—it's half a dozen short of a majority. The very fact that the administration wants the rules changed is a sufficient reason why this Senate won't change them. Neither will the next Senate if there's anything in political prophecy.

After careful investigation, the agriculture department announces that very few women ever heard of more than two ways of cutting steaks and that a majority never heard of more than one kind of roast. The trouble is, they all know the same kinds and ask for them.

Result, there's a tremendous demand for those few kinds and the rest of the meat goes into the discard. The department suggests that housewives post up on meat cuts, in the interest both of variety and economy.

ANSWER TO YESTERDAY'S CROSSWORD PUZZLE:

"Splash away, Son—the floor is Valsparred"

"YES, you precious little rascal—you think you're getting back at me for that tiny bit of soapuds in your eye. But permit me, most excellent son, to inform you that the floor is varnished with Valspar—and that you and I are here just to tell people that even soapy water can't harm a Valsparred surface. So you can keep on pouring till it runs off the page!"

Valspar Varnish is not only exceptionally durable and easy to apply, but absolutely waterproof. It can be washed freely with soap and water. It will never turn white!

Anything that's worth varnishing is worth Valsparring.

The Richardson Multicrome Roof in opal, as it would appear on the model house built by The House Beautiful Publishing Company, in Boston

The opal roof—another Richardson contribution toward more beautiful homes

You will find in this newest Richardson roof an exclusive new coloring—opal—to add still greater beauty to your home.

The opal roof is formed by a skillful blending on each shingle of the two most beautiful Richardson colors in slate, weathered brown and jade green. Applied just as they come from the bundle, these new opal shingles give to your roof a coloring like that of sunlight filtered through dancing leaves on a fresh spring lawn.

The Richardson Multicrome Roof is also laid in other pleasing color effects. The rare weathered brown, for example, an exclusive Richardson color, has proved especially popular when applied in combination with other Richardson shingles of jade green, tile red or black pearl. In fact, there is a Multicrome Roof to please every taste.

The new colors, opal and weathered brown, are used only on the Richardson Super-Giant Shingle—famous for its beauty and endurance. Moreover, its inner materials, Richardson felt and Viskalt, give conclusive evidence of its endurance. And Super-Giants are equally good for new or over-the-old-roof jobs.

Come in and see this shingle—and the other Richardson roofing products. Or, if you prefer, telephone and we will come to you.

The Well-Dressed Man
By BEAUNASH
Correct Clothes To Meet The Obligation Of Every Occasion.

Legs From London
Some Englishman has remarked that the world of fashion is but a suburb of London. This has more point as an epigram than application in point of fact.
Anyway, even for a Londoner to praise London is like declaring that the ocean is a considerable body of water or that the sun gives a fine light—
"then say'st an undisputed thing in such a solemn way". As concerns sporting wear, however, it would be idle to dispute the leadership of London, for the Englishman is almost cradled on horseback and raised on a golf course. There is no question that we are deeply indebted to the English, the Irish and the Scotch for all the colorfulness and picturesqueness which mark present-day field dress, from fuzzy stockings right up to pull-over sweaters, or jerseys, jumpers and woolies, as they are fond of terming these garments on the wrong side of the ocean.

Indeed, so countless and varied have such articles become in design, shade and pattern, that one can't possibly keep abreast of sweaters or pace with hosiery. No sooner does a new color come in, than another color puts it out. You are comically reminded of the venerable tale of the man who stepped in to buy a new hat, only to be requested by the polite salesman to be seated, "as the style is just changing".

Wide-ribbed, full-fashioned golf stockings of the sort illustrated here are high in favor just now. Observe how the turnover tops are executed in a totally different design from the leg.
The one is a vivid-hued Tartan check. The other is a broad-barred stripe. Such hosiery is not only procurable in heavy wool, but also in light and medium weights, as well as in intermixtures of wool with silk for those men, and there are many, who cannot wear thick stockings with comfort.

When choosing golf hosiery, always keep in mind a particular color theme or ensemble that you wish to carry out. Preferably, sweater and stockings should harmonize in color and pattern, but, at least, in color. Do not use too many colors. Do not select colors that are at odds with your suit. Do not "dress young", that is, in colors too startlingly bright, if you have reached the age when one acquires a tummy, a temper and a thinning thatch.
Nothing is so laughable as to see a man pretending to years be long ago left behind.

THE STORY SO FAR:

GLORIA GORDON, beautiful flapper, marries DICK GREG-ORY, struggling young lawyer.
Her idea of marriage is fun and fine clothes . . . but no work or children!

Dick borrows his mother's maid, MAGGIE, to teach Gloria to cook. But she refuses to learn.

Gloria gives a "wild" party,
and asks a STANLEY WAY-BURN, an actor with whom she was once in love, to be one of the guests. When Wayburn comes, Dick is instantly jealous of him, although the crafty actor devotes himself to MRS. MYRA GAIL. Gloria drinks too much and faints away while dancing with DR. JOHN SEYMOUR, whose wife, MAY, is in love with JIM CAREWE. The party breaks up when LOLA HOUGH scolds BILL, her husband, for petting Maggie, disgusted, leaves and returns to MOTHER GREG-ORY.

Then Gloria hires RANGHILD
SWANSON, although Dick says they can't afford a maid. And she buys $100 worth of new clothes, loading Dick with debts.
About this time Gloria begins to be jealous of Dick's secretary, MISS BRIGGS.

Dick sells his old car to buy Gloria a new one. Gloria goes riding in it with Wayburn. They are seen by Mother Gregory, who sends for Gloria.

HOW GO ON WITH THE STORY
MAGGIE opened the door of Mother Gregory's large and imposing house for Gloria.

"How do you do, Maggie?" Gloria said as naturally as she could. Maggie nodded grimly.

"Mrs. Gregory is in the front parlor, ma'am," she said.

Gloria drew in a long breath, as the dark red curtains of the old fashioned room dropped behind her.

Mother Gregory was sitting in a Sleepy Hollow chair before the fire.
The parlor with its heavy walnut furniture and oil paintings was in shadow.

"Did you want me for anything special?" Gloria faltered. She was afraid of Mother Gregory as she never had been afraid of anybody before in all her life.

"Something very special . . . If you call it that," the older woman snapped. The thin nostrils of her Roman nose dilated, angrily.

"Who . . . who was that man you had in your car out in the country this afternoon?" she asked. "And what were you doing in such a God-forsaken spot with him?"

"Oh, it's not so God-forsaken as all that!" Gloria answered with all the courage she could command.
"You were there, weren't you?"

"Yes, and on a perfectly good errand . . . collecting the rent from the tenant out on our farm," Mother Gregory answered. "Now, I've been frank with you . . . you be frank with me! Who was the man?"

"You wouldn't know him . . .
Stanley Wayburn, the actor," Gloria answered. She lifted her head and went on bravely.

"I just happened to bump into him . . . and offered him a lift," she said. "What makes you always think the worst of me?"

Mother Gregory looked at Gloria for a full minute before she answered.

"Tell me on this particular occasion," she said, "the thing that makes me think so badly of you is that I plainly saw the fellow's arm around you.
Gloria! I was right behind your car for a good half-mile before your friend saw me."

"Spying on me!" Gloria cried disdainfully. "A fine thing to do!"
Mother Gregory laughed with grim triumph.

"You'll stand a little watching, I

She showed Gloria what was inside the crown of the sport hat she was carrying . . . a large silver flask.

Gloria cooed. "How about three o'clock?"

"Three o'clock is a long way off, but it will do," answered Stan. "I'll see you then, Russet."

Gloria had hardly set the phone down on the bedside table before its bell whirled again. This time it was May Seymour calling.

"What are you doing with yourself, old thing?" May asked. "Want to go downtown for lunch and a movie?"

Gloria giggled.
"I can't, darling," she said. "I have a heavy date with the best-looking man in the world at three o'clock."

THERE was a long silence.
"I think you're kidding me," Gloria said. "May's voice when it came over the wire was puzzled."

"No, I'm not. Honest Injun, Stan Wayburn is coming here this afternoon to have a cup of tea with me," she said.

"What'll Dick say?"
"Dick won't know. He's gone out of town on business," answered Gloria. "He's peeved to death at me, anyway, just now, because I spent a bit of his hoarded cash. I don't think he cares what I do as long as I don't bother him."

"Well," May remarked, thoughtfully, "your friend Wayburn is good looking, but I'd be careful if I were you. There are queer stories floating around about him. The men don't like him."

Gloria didn't answer.
"I think I'll come over to chaperone you, baby," May said suddenly. "Perhaps I'll bring Jim along, so it won't look queer to your play-acting friend. . . . We'll make it a regular, sun-bath party."

When Ranghild came upstairs for the breakfast tray Gloria told her she could have the afternoon off.
"But before you go make a lot of sandwiches, please," she said. "And see that there's a good fire burning in the living room. And phone the drug store for some cigarettes."

Gloria couldn't make up her mind which of her new dresses to wear that afternoon. She stood thoughtfully before her clothes-dresser.

Not the black velvet. She had worn that the afternoon before.
The old rose? . . . No.
Gloria took the peacock blue gown from its hanger.

She held it against her, and walked over to the mirror.
Yes, she would wear that. It made her amber eyes look almost green.
her hair like molten copper. It was what May called a "mean" dress!

Glory put it on.
She brushed all the wave from her hair and bound it close around her head with a silver ribbon.

"A bit over-dressed, but . . .
stunning just the same," she said to the image of herself in the long mirror.

WHEN Glory trailed downstairs, Ranghild stared.
"I've been trying to get the drug store on the wire, but the phone is out of order, I think," the maid said, her eyes wide with admiration.
"Shall I go next door to telephone?"

"No, never mind," Glory told her.
"Be sure to lock the kitchen door behind you when you go out."

She went into the living room and sat before the fire, trying to read.
But the words danced before her eyes.

She was waiting with all her senses for Stanley Wayburn's coming.

After an eternity the bell rang.
Glory opened the front door. May and Jim stood there.

"Well, look at you, all dressed up like a broken arm!" cried May as she danced into the house. "Isn't she grand, Jim? And me in my old sport rags!"

May pulled down the belt of her white sweater, and ran a comb through her short black hair.
"There! I'm all fussed up, too!"
she said in her lively way. "I don't see your little boy friend, anywhere.
Where is he . . . hiding?"

Gloria laughed.
"He hasn't come," she said. "It's not quite three o'clock, and he has matters, he has! He wouldn't come ahead of time. He must be fashionably late!"

"I suppose Jim and I are guilty of a social error, by arriving on time!"
observed May. "Well, we brought the life of the party along with us.
So forgive us, dearie!"

She showed Gloria what was inside the crown of the sport hat she was carrying . . . a large silver flask!
Gloria's heart sank. She didn't want a "wild" party. She had looked forward to this quiet afternoon with Stan. She was sorry that she had told May that Stan was coming.

"Here comes Wayburn up the street now," said Jim, as he started for the kitchen, flask in hand. And in a minute afterward the hall rang.
May and Jim disappeared into the kitchen to make high balls while Glory opened the door for Stan.

WAYBURN threw off his top coat as he entered. Then without warning he turned and took her in his arms. Glory pushed him away.

"May Seymour and Jim Carewe are here," she whispered, shaking her head. "They're out in the kitchen . . . mixing drinks."

"What's the idea?" asked Stan. "I wanted to see you alone . . . to talk to you . . . What did you ask them here for? A friend of mine?"

Gloria shook her head, again.
"I didn't ask them, silly," she said.
"They asked themselves, as soon as they heard that Dick was out of town."

"Dick out of town . . . ?" Way-burn groaned. "And we could have had the whole afternoon to ourselves . . ."

"You weren't so wild for my companionship a year ago when you could have had it, you know," Glory said sharply.

"You'll never forgive me for that,
will you, infant?" the actor asked.
He put one finger under her soft chin and raised her face to his.

Just then Glory heard the swinging door of the pantry creak on its hinges.

"Look out!" she whispered.
"They're coming!"
The curtains of the living room parted in. And in marched May with the plates of Ranghild's sandwiches, followed by Jim, carrying four tall glasses of gingerale. Under his arm was tucked the silver flask.
Stan sat down in Dick's favorite arm-chair.

"This," he said when he had greeted May and Jim, "begins to look like a regular party. I'm glad I came!"

LETTER FROM RUTH BURKE TO LESLIE PRESCOTT, CONTINUED.

I don't believe you are shocked because I am telling you, Leslie, that now I think subconsciously that I was more or less in love with Walter for the last year of my married life with Harry.

I wonder if any person with a decent logical mind is ever shocked at the vagaries of humanity. Rather do not these vagaries call forth a great pity that human emotions should be almost always the sport of fate?

I don't think I ever was as passionately in love with Walter as I was with Harry. I know that Byron was right when he said in effect that in her first love her woman loves her lover, but ever after all she loves is love.

Walter is perfectly wonderful to me. He makes love so beautiful that I can't help loving him. I think he is the best man I have ever known, and yet you will remember that when you first knew him there was much gossip about him as a man about town.

I have never asked him about those years. Sufficient to me is the fact that I am all in all to him now.

You say, "Stay as you are—devoted to each other." I think that we will stay as we are, not because we are passionately in love, but because we both have the same tastes, we both have great tolerance, we both try to look at life from the same place of vantage and we both have learned that no one is perfect.

One of the things that I think endears me to Walter is that I do not trouble him with constant curiosity. Perhaps I don't deserve any credit for that as I am not curious by nature. However, I think that when two people are much in each other's company, curiosity on the part of either as to what the other does when absent, is an impertinence that is almost unbearable. One never has the feeling of absence, that absence that makes the heart grow fonder, if one must tell all of one's doings when out of the other's sight.

I am very glad, my dear, that you extended that credit to Alice Hartley. Give her anything she wants. I happen to know Porter Breed very well and I know that pretty clothes are the best ammunition that Alice can use. He would have no use for a sweetieheart or a wife that was not the best dressed woman at any place he would take her.

I also know Alice well enough to realize that the lack of pretty clothes would have the effect of making her most awkward and self-conscious.

She has all her life been so exquisitely dressed that the realization that she was wearing something ugly or cheap, whether it was seen or unseen, would take away all of her poise which is her greatest charm.

New York—Many artists have tried to catch the spirit of New York in paintings, but the best they have been able to do is to set down an impression of one little section. Music offers a wider scope for the recording of the entire scene. If a complete record is possible in any medium. The nearest approach to such a musical record is the old ragtime piece, "The Sidewalks of New York."

Now George Gershwin has been commissioned by the New York Symphony Society to write a New York concerto in three movements, to be played in Carnegie Hall Dec. 3 and 4. Gershwin is an impressionist. His "Rhapsody in Blue" attracted wide attention as the forerunner of a new school of American music. Being an impressionist Gershwin has removed himself far from New York to write the piece. He will stay in London until it is done.

He is a man for whom tomorrow has never come. His sensitive face is framed in long gray hair. He wears a flowing black tie. I often see him in the theater and about the movie houses. Once he was an actor striving through long years for recognition. Then he entered the movies, but could get no higher than a secondary character part. He is only a few years from the grave, but he regularly makes the rounds of the movie studios and the stage booking offices, firm in the belief that he would become famous in a night if someone would just give him a chance at a big role.

Many young men and women ambitious to succeed in the arts come to New York only to be duped by bogus tutors. A student of the violin tells me that an ex-bootblack on the East Side promises to teach beginners to play any instrument. And that ex-bootblack can hardly read music and knows nothing of technique. The violin student who told me of the bogus music teacher, tells a very pathetic story of another violin student. Being hard pressed for money he pawned his violin for $5. Then he asked the pawnbroker to let him play one last piece. He played "Humoresque" so effectively the pawnbroker wept and gave him another dollar.

below the attacking plane, as well as at distant objects on land. The new torpedo of the skies weighs about 25 pounds, is nearly 5 feet long, and can be filled with deadly poison gas, incendiary material or high explosive. Biplane wings with an area of eight square feet support the torpedo in its flight. Experts say that it can be launched by a plane a mile in the air and directed with precision objects eight miles distant. A driven gyroscope assures stability.
